John Moran outlines garbage tax

By MIKE PETROVSKY
As part of Carbondale's 1984 budget, residents will be asked for garbage collection for the first time in the city's history. The tax is $30 per dwelling per year with a 10 percent fee added if it is not paid within 30 days of receipt of the bill.
Frederick, councilman John Moran, who was the only council member voting against the emergency ordinance to raise the garbage tax, said he was not in favor of the tax. He said that the tax would be a burden on the city's residents and that the city should look for other ways to raise revenue.
